Stock Market Falls on News From Mid-East

NEW YORK (AP) — The pro-Nasser revolution in Iraq brought sharp losses to international oils, and the stock market declined in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

While oils with heavy interests in the Middle East declined, some of the oil issues with predominately Western Hemisphere resources went higher.

Losses for miscellaneous issues were mainly fractional, going to about a point or so. International oils were down from one to three points, somewhat trimming their early losses.

The market was lower at the start and the ticker tape was late briefly as a succession of oil blocks was traded. The activity began to slacken before the morning was over.

The trend was mildly lower among aircrafts, rails, steels, non-ferrous metals and chemicals.

Gulf Oil trimmed nearly a point from its initial four-point loss. Royal Dutch was down about two points and Texas Co. more than that.

Losses of about a point or so were taken by Shell Transport & Trading, Getty, Standard Oil of California, Socony - Mobil and Standard Oil (New Jersey).

Amerasia, a big domestic producer, dipped a fraction at the start in sympathy then gained about a point. Richfield Oil was up more than a point.

An upside specialty was Saudebaker, Packard, up a fraction following weekend news that it is likely to drop the Packard from its 1959 line of cars and concentrate on economy-type models, dropped about a point.

Among the rails, Nickel and Du Pont and Goodyear also were off about a point.

U. S. government bonds drifted lower.

1st Presbyterian Meeting Tuesday

The Women of the Presbyterian Church will hold their monthly general meeting Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the chapel. All of the congregation are invited to attend.

BY THE CARLOAD—No car could complain at having to carry this cargo of pretty girls, even this small model in Paris. The girls, contestants in the "Miss Europe" contest, are, left to right in the front row, Lillane Ringler, Miss Switzerland; Hajett Reik, Miss Albania; Linda Lutz, Miss Poland; and Eda Frack, Miss Austria. In the back row are Claudie Johns, "Miss France d'Outre Mer," left, and Evelynne Riecke, who was selected Miss Europe. Topping the pyramid is Colette Obadia, Miss Spain.

NAACP Will Urge Action, Says Wilkins

CLEVELAND (AP)—The American Association for the Advancement of Colored People will not be content with "the crawl of a turtle" in a jet age in its campaign to win full freedom for the American Negro.

This was emphasized yesterday by Ray Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, who addressed some 4,000 delegates at the closing session of the organization's 49th annual convention.

"There is no comfort in our resolutions for those who complain that the Negro is going 'too fast' and 'pressing too hard,'" Wilkins said.

"In a jet age we can't be content with the crawl of a turtle. We have been too long in the past. We have to lead now that we must abide by the 'never-never' pace of Mississippi and her sister states."

"It is far too late in the day in a world where men of all races are battling for freedom and equality for any band of little men to turn back the clock."

Wilkins said the incident at Little Rock, Ark., last September in which nine Negro students were barred from Central High School by national guardsmen marked the confession of defeat by segregationists.

"The use of the ultimate in naked power—armed state troops—and the call to mob action from no less a place than the governor's mansion," Wilkins said, "were desperate admissions of the death of what may be called the philosophy of permissive segregation."

Describing the South's resistance to the Supreme Court's school integration decision in 1954 as a "host case," Wilkins continued:

"Our opponents have now reached the place where they will walk out of a meeting, as they did here in Cleveland at the National Education Association convention, rather than permit discussion of desegregation."

"In other words, they can't take it. They cannot compete in the market place of ideas because their ideas won't stand up."

Wilkins referred in opposition of southern delegates at the recent NEA convention here to a proposal for the association to make a thorough study of public school integration.

In his discussion of the Little Rock incident, Wilkins departed from his prepared text to assert that Negroes are dissatisfied with the Eisenhower Administration's handling of civil rights enforcement.

"We are not the custodians of our constitution," he said. "We are not expected to carry out the mandate of the courts. That's what we have an attorney general for. That's why we have a president."

6 Drown in Overcrowded Fishing Boat

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP)—"I heard the motor kick off and I knewed something was wrong," a stunned boat landing operator said today as he told of the tragic drownings of six persons, including three small children.

Ed Thurgood, 74, said he had warned the victims not to overload their 14-foot wooden boat as they prepared yesterday to end a gay weekend of fishing on Benson Lake, 12 miles west of here.

Sheriff Harold Woodson said the craft, heavily laden with seven people and camping and fishing equipment, struck a cypress stump in the lake, hurling the occupants into seven feet of water. Only a woman and a small dog survived.

The sheriff quoted Mrs. Elsie Henry, 38, of Pine Bluff—the sole human survivor—as saying the impact threw them "all out in the water."

Woodson identified the dead as Mrs. Henry's husband, Otis, 45; their 5-year-old son, Wayne; David Imbler, 44; also of Pine Bluff, his wife, about 46, and their two daughters, Dottie Lou, 3, and Sandra, 5.

Mrs. Henry was under sedation at a hospital here but her condition was not believed serious.

Thurgood said the two families arrived at his landing Saturday afternoon by boat, after leaving their car at the home of his son, Willie Thurgood, a mile up the lake. They spent Saturday night in a cabin at the landing and had fished early yesterday morning.

The aged man said that as the Henrys and the Imblers prepared to leave the landing and return to their car yesterday, he warned them not to overload their boat and chose himself to walk the distance on shore.

Thurgood said he heard the 5-horsepower outboard motor on the boat quit suddenly and a woman continued on Page Three

In the Gubernatorial Campaign Faubus Finkbeiner Ward

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus will speak at Paragould tonight following day-long campaigning for a third term in Craighead County.

In a statewide telecast Saturday, the governor went on record as favoring a state minimum wage law. This was Faubus' strongest pitch so far for labor support.

"Throughout my tenure in office, I have given full support to the state agencies created to help the ordinary working people of Arkansas," Faubus said.

His schedule for the rest of the week includes:

Tuesday—West Helena, Helena, Osceola and Elyseville.

Wednesday—Lopanta, Trumann, Harrisburg, Marianna and Forrest City.

Thursday—Wynne, Augusta, Cotton Plant, Fargo, Negro Girls Training School dedication and Brinkley.

Friday—Batesville, Salem, Mamou, Spring, Hardy and Possum.

Britain and Baghdad Pact Face Showdown

LONDON (AP)—The coup in Iraq today faces Britain and the other members of the Baghdad Pact with the question of military intervention in a crisis considered in London to be far more urgent than the situation in Lebanon.

Iraq is the only Arab state unashamedly and legally bound to the West by treaty ties, as a member of the Baghdad Pact with Britain, Pakistan, Turkey and Iran. The United States, although not a member of the alliance, supports it and is a member of its leading committees.

The immediate diplomatic reaction in the British capital was that failure by the West to come to the aid of the legal Iraqi government almost certainly would spell the end of Western influence throughout the Arab world.

The Baghdad alliance does not commit its members to help each other automatically in case of attack or internal revolt. But it does place on the allies the obligation to consider all-out help in such situations.

All signs suggest that the Iraqi army plot was cunningly timed and long prepared.

King Faisal II and Premier Nuri Said were scheduled to fly today to Istanbul for a conference of the Arab members of the Baghdad member states. The Istanbul talks were to be a curtain raiser to a meeting of all five prime ministers of the pact nations in London July 28, with the Lebanese situation and the Cyprus dispute as the main items to be discussed.

The weakened position of Lebanese President Chamoun almost automatically undermined the pro-Western federation of Iraq and Jordan, which for long had been the main political enemy of President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Both in Iraq and Jordan there had been for some time much suppressed hostility against the pro-Western policies of the Baghdad and Amman governments. In recent weeks there had been evidence of mounting tension between Iraq and Syria.

The Soviet Union surely will attempt to seize every advantage from the developments to apply pressure against Western interests in the Middle East.

The future of Europe for years to come is bound up with Middle East resources. The United States can get by without those resources. Western Europe cannot.

Where intervention might have been considered foolhardy in a situation like that which developed in Lebanon, Britain and possibly even France cannot regard lightly any threat to the flow of Middle East oil.

The United States, too, may take a second look at the pros and cons of intervention. Events in Iraq are going to give a big boost to the forces of extreme Arab nationalism throughout the entire area.

Premier Nuri Said, the man whose strength and determination kept the extreme nationalists and the Communists at bay in Iraq, had been desperate to win support from the West to keep the Iraqi-Jordan federation in being.

He had been imploring the British to induce the ruling sheik of Kuwait to join him in keeping Jordan from those who wanted to turn her over to the Egyptians and Syrians.

Now the blow apparently has been struck. Inside Kuwait, the pressure on the fabulously wealthy ruler has become unbearable.

Middle East Upheaval on Road to War

Editor's Note—William L. Ryan has just completed a six-week trip to the Middle East. He visited Iraq, Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Kuwait.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

BELGRADE (AP)—Iraq's revolution can be the beginning of the worst of all crises for the Middle East. It carries a real danger to world peace.

The West had more reason to fear such a development in Iraq than in almost any other place in the Middle East. One way or the other, the events in Baghdad are touched off by the overthrow of King Faisal of Jordan is to survive the overthrow of his Iraqi cousin Faisal, he will need mass support to spill out into other sensitive areas from the outside. If he gets that support, the Middle East will become a cockpit for a deep world political crisis.

But if the Iraqi revolution is made to stick, its effect also will be felt far beyond Jordan.

The turmoil is likely to reach Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the rest of the Arab Peninsula, where the fever for Arab nationalism, always strong, will get new impetus.

What happened in Baghdad appears to have been a coup by desperate men who had been cying an opportunity and who feared that opportunity might slip from their hands.

The opportunity was afforded by the Lebanese rebellion. For extremists in Baghdad it must have been a question of now or never—no matter what Gamal Abdel Nasser's own opinion of their plans might have been.

I was last in Baghdad a little more than a month ago.

One could feel the tension being generated by the Lebanese rebellion.

Today's developments foreshadow all sorts of chaos. Because of this, it is difficult to believe that Nasser wanted it to happen in just this way and at just this time. He has grown fearful of Soviet influence in the Middle East, and his talks here in Yugoslavia with President Tito have indicated his desire to remain in the middle between the two world blocs.

The Soviet Union surely will attempt to seize every advantage from the developments to apply pressure against Western interests in the Middle East.

The future of Europe for years to come is bound up with Middle East resources. The United States can get by without those resources. Western Europe cannot.

Where intervention might have been considered foolhardy in a situation like that which developed in Lebanon, Britain and possibly even France cannot regard lightly any threat to the flow of Middle East oil.

Oil-Rich Iraq Stormed by Rebels; Washington and London Dismayed

Washington Shocked by War Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower summoned a group of congressional Democrats and Republicans to an emergency White House meeting today to discuss the turbulent Middle Eastern situation.

The urgent summons was touched off by the overthrow of King Faisal's pro-Western government in Iraq amidst demands in Congress for a reappraisal of U.S. policy in the Mideast.

The White House announced meeting call after Eisenhower conferred for more than an hour and a half with Secretary of State Dulles and Vice President Nixon on the Iraq coup.

Eisenhower left a meeting of the National Security Council for his talk with Dulles and Nixon. This, and the sudden summoning of a bipartisan meeting, indicated the administration takes a very grave view of the Iraq development.

Those called to the White House on short notice included Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and the Senate Republican leader, William F. Knowland of California.

In addition Eisenhower invited representatives of the Senate and House Foreign Relations, Armed Services, and Appropriations committees.

The Senate leadership group, in addition to Johnson and Knowland, included Democratic Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, Carl Hayden of Arizona and John Hennings of Missouri; and GOP Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Eisenhower left the Security Council meeting at 10:30 a.m. (EDT) to confer in his office with Secretary of State Dulles and Vice President Nixon.

Dulles was accompanied by several State Department Middle East specialists.

Both Dulles and Nixon are members of the council, the nation's top security planning body. However, Dulles did not arrive at the Continued on Page Two

Labor Row Threatens Air Base

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Representatives of contractors and union asbestos workers met here today in "confidential" wage negotiations. Failure to reach agreement could halt work on a huge project at the Little Rock Air Force Base and eventually affect other projects throughout the state, a spokesman said.

"Negotiations have now reached a critical point," said N. W. Bailey, president of the Masters Insulation Association.

He said that if settlement is not reached about 1,200 construction workers at a 1,550-unit housing project at the Little Rock Air Force Base would face a layoff soon. Bailey added that ultimately work would stop at other projects throughout Arkansas.

Bailey said members of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers walked off the air base job June 30 when their contract expired. He said the workers demanded an immediate 20-cent hourly wage increase and another 20-cent increase after a year.

Bill S. Clark, attorney for the contractors, said the union rejected a 15-cent offer.

Asbestos workers now make $3.20 hourly.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Iraqi soldiers raised the flag of the United Arab Republic in Iraqi territory opposite the great Abadan oil refineries today, according to reports from Khurrumshahr.

Khurrumshahr is on the Shatt al Arab River, which forms the border between Iraq and the southwest corner of Iran.

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—King Hussein proclaimed himself head of the Arab Union of Jordan and Iraq today.

A communique issued at the royal palace said that according to the Arab Union constitution and due to the absence of King Faisal of Iraq, Hussein had taken over powers as head of the Arab Federation as from today.

There was no clear word here as to the fate of Faisal.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkish leaders waited in vain at Istanbul's airport today for King Faisal of Iraq, Crown Prince Abdul Ilah and Premier Nuri Said to arrive for a meeting of the Moslem members of the Baghdad Pact.

Turkish President Celal Bayar, Premier Adnan Menderes and Foreign Minister Fatin Rushu Zorlu took off unexpectedly for their capital, Ankara.

Despite the startling news of the coup in Iraq, the Turks and diplomats of the other Moslem members of the pact—Iran, Pakistan and Iraq—waited at the airport for hours.

When it became evident the Iraqi chiefs were not coming, the three Turkish leaders held an emergency session. Then they suddenly disappeared at the airport with a heavy police escort, which shoved aside assembled newsmen and photographers, and took off.

They were followed in another plane by Pakistan's diplomatic representatives.

Iraqi diplomats continued to wait, but the military band and guard of honor marched off.

The Baghdad Pact conference was to have opened here Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. military aid to Iraq has been on a relatively small scale, totaling less than 50 million dollars in the last 3½ years.

Historically, the British have organized, trained, and equipped the military forces there. But late in 1954, an agreement among Iran, Britain and the United States, brought American military aid into the picture.

The United States agreed to concentrate its aid on improving Iraq's ground forces.

The United States maintains no military bases in Iraq.

King Faisal Is Overthrown, His Premier Slain

By EDWIN A. SHANKE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Revolutionists in Iraq, keystone of the West's hold on the Middle East, proclaimed the overthrow of King Faisal today and establishment of a republic favorable to Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Direct communication with Baghdad was cut off but advices reaching London via the Italian government said mobs had sacked and set fire to the British Embassy.

Tonight the Baghdad radio declared "the situation has finally been stabilized," and said Abdul Ilah, uncle of King Faisal and the man behind the throne, had been hanged.

There were conflicting reports as to the fate of the overthrown premier, Nuri Said, long the strong man of Iraqi politics. A Cairo report had him killed by a mob.

One broadcast on the wave length of the Baghdad radio, heard in Jerusalem, claimed Nuri Said and Ilah were alive. The Baghdad broadcast that Ilah had been hanged outside the Ministry of Defense was heard later.

The rebels said they were being supported by "military positions all over Iraq."

The coup if successful, would be a stunning blow to the West. It would knock a key pin—Iraq—out of the anti-Communist Baghdad Pact in the Middle East.

Iraq is one of the Middle East's richest oil countries. The British-controlled Iraqi Petroleum Co. produces most of Iraq's oil. The product goes largely to Western Europe.

There was no direct word of 26-year-old Faisal, who also is chief of state of the new Iraq-Jordan Federation formed Feb. 14, 1958, to counter Nasser's U.A.R., for the last two weeks before. The Communist radio in Budapest said he had been "arrested by the army."

The Jordan Embassy in London announced, however, that 23-year-old King Hussein of Jordan, Faisal's Hashemite cousin, was undertaking to re-establish public order and to re-establish public security and order on both sides of the union.

The Jordan ambassador, a brother of Jordan Premier Samir Rifai, did not say how Hussein proposed to act. But he said the Federation government was in urgent session in Amman, the Jordan capital, and that he was confident the revolt would be put down.

There were no reports to bear out Cairo claims that the revolt had spread to Jordan, and there was no clear-cut indication whether the rebel leaders had established control throughout Iraq.

All that was known for certain was that the Baghdad radio was in the hands of the revolutionary leaders.

Except for the reports of mob action there was no report of fighting.

The Baghdad broadcasts were greeted with jubilation in Cairo, Damascus, Moscow and East European satellite capitals.

Here in Beirut, torn for more than two months by a revolt against pro-Western President Camille Chamoun, rebels in the Moslem quarter celebrated with a wild firing of guns.

Communist broadcasts said the couple was carried out because Iraq had planned to give military aid to the Lebanese government.

Baghdad radio named Hris Gen. Abdel Karim Kassem leader of the coup. He was said to have named a 13-man Cabinet and a three-man Sovereignty Council headed by Lt. Gen. Naguib el Ribai. The Council, it was said, was an interim government.

Curfew Put on Cyprus to Curb Rioting

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A round-the-clock curfew was clamped on Cyprus today to halt mounting communal warfare between Greek and Turkish Cypriots. Terror gripped the island.

The British governor, Sir Hugh Foot, ordered all persons to stay in their homes until further notice except civil servants and essential public workers. It was the most drastic security move since the shootings, bombings, ambushes and riots began on this Mediterranean island three years ago.

The Greeks and Turks here have been fighting each other since June 8, ever since the word got out that the new British plan for the island would not satisfy the Greek majority's desire to unite with Greece or the Turk demands to partition the island to protect their rights.

The Turks took the initial initiative in the communal attacks. But last week EOKA, the Greek underground terrorist organization which had been generally quiet for months, announced it would take the warpath against the Turkish Cypriots.

There was a rising tide of Greek attacks on the Turks and of Turkish retaliation. Three Greeks and five Turks died yesterday, bringing the toll in the past five weeks to 31 Greek Cypriots and 20 Turkish. Four Greek stores were burned out and the Chapel of St. Mamas in Limassol, containing the island's finest wood carvings, was badly damaged by fire.

The attackers ignored an unprecedented joint appeal for peace issued by Foot and the heads of the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities. Nicosia Mayor Theodoros Dervis and Dr. Fazil Kutluk.

Last week the island's Greek mayors accused the British administration—which has 40,000 troops here—of being unable to deal with the situation. They asked for United Nations observers and a U. N. police force. The Greek government has suggested a U. N. trusteeship for the island. In London, there were growing fears of a civil war between the 400,000 Greek Cypriots and 180,000 Turks on the island.

hundred, would exercise sovereignty until a plebiscite for independence can be held.

Orders from Baghdad told the people not to attack foreign embassies or other establishments, and announced that the lives and property of foreigners would be safeguarded.

Brig Gen. Abdel Gafar Halem was announced as the new army commander. Halem and Queen Mother Aisha also were announced. The coup faced Britain and the other members of the Baghdad Pact—Pakistan, Iran and Turkey—with the question of military intervention in Iraq, the only Arab member of the Western-sponsored alliance. The pact does not provide for automatic intervention in the event of attack or internal revolt, but diplomats in London said failure of the West to come to the aid of the legal Iraqi government almost certainly would spell the end of Western influence throughout the Arab world.

The United States was no less on the spot. Although not a member of the Baghdad alliance, it supports it and is a member of its major committees. Faisal and Nuri had been scheduled to fly to Istanbul today for a meeting of the Asian members of the Baghdad Pact.

As one of their first actions, the coup leaders announced recognition of the U. A. R., which Faisal and Nuri had previously had refused to extend.

The news of the Iraqi revolt was broadcast briefly this morning from Moscow. A Tass dispatch dated from Damascus reported the Baghdad radio announcement and said: "The royal regime has been overthrown and the Iraq republic has been proclaimed."

Baghdad radio said the commander of the Iraqi army had closed all frontiers and airports until further notice and that no one would be permitted to enter Iraq without special permission from army headquarters.

Overthrow of the 23-year-old Iraqi King and more particularly of Nuri Said, long Iraq's strong man, is the most serious blow to the Western position in the Middle East since Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal.

Iraq was the West's chief bulwark in the area against Nasser's ambition to unite the Arab world under his leadership.

Despite a continual flood of propaganda from Cairo radio and ruling sheiks will be severe. Their position is a dangerous one. The pressure of the Egyptians, Palestinians and Syrians is tremendous. The fever of nationalism has infected many young Kuwaiti, credible little taxpayer's paradise is, all eager to turn over that into Nasser.

Even in Saudi Arabia, whose American-extracted oil helps nourish Western Europe, support for Nasser reaches highly placed persons. Crown Prince Faisal, governing the country now for his brother King Saud, is likely to have great difficulty maintaining the position he recently assumed as a neutral between the two Arab blocs.

If the Iraqi revolution, therefore, consolidates itself, the real payoff crisis in the Middle East is at hand.

Greenlease Cash May Tie Into Robbery

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Post-Dispatch said yesterday that a federal grand jury here probably will be presented with information about a reported robbery of a North Little Rock, Ark., man. The newspaper said the information had been collected by federal agents continuing a 3-year search for the missing Greenlease ransom money.

Without revealing its sources, the Post-Dispatch said federal agents had conducted an intensive probe of the Dec. 22, 1957, robbery

Faisal and his cousin King Hussein, 25, of neighboring Jordan, in May united their countries in an Arab federation headed by Faisal as a Western-facing counter to the U. A. R.

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY

THE CASE OF
WHEN DEATH BLOWS IN

Seventh of a series

by Donald J. Sobel

"There are two suspects, Dr. Haledjian," said Inspector Winters. "Both have seemingly strong alibis. At least guilt would be difficult to prove against either."

"The Brooks cottage overlooks the ocean, but the study in which Alfred Brooks was found shot to death faces a tropical garden in the rear of the house. The study was locked from the inside, so unquestionably the fatal shot was fired through the open garden window."

"Judith Brooks, the dead man's daughter, claims to have been in her room. She is in poor health, and high winds make her nervous. She was particularly upset because the fall end of Hurricane Liza was blowing in from the Atlantic all day. When she heard the shot, she rushed to the study, but finding the door locked, climbed in through the window. As she was opening the study door, almost overcome by hysterics, Harold McCarthy entered the cottage."

"McCarthy, the murdered man's lawyer, claims that as he left his car, the wind tore some important papers from his grasp. He had to chase them to the water's edge, where he heard the shot. I checked that part of his story, anyway; some papers were covered with moist sand."

"From the time McCarthy arrived was either suspect out of the other's sight?" asked Haledjian.

"No. With murder committed in the house, they watched each other like hawks."

"Who benefits by the will?"

"Most of the cash and property goes to the daughter. However, McCarthy inherits a substantial amount of securities."

"From what you've told me," said Haledjian, "it is evident which one is lying."

White House until after the meeting was well under way and he went into conference with Eisenhower immediately.

Presumably Dulles had been studying reports on the Iraq situation at his office.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, in announcing the Dulles-Eisenhower meeting, told reporters:

"Of course the subject was Iraq."

He said the Middle East situation was mentioned at the Security Council meeting itself only in passing, if at all, since Dulles was not present.

Hagerty said he did not know whether any statement would be issued after Eisenhower's meeting with Dulles and Nixon.

The meeting was held as demands were raised in Congress for a reappraisal of American Middle East policy in the light of the upheaval in Iraq.

Among those who made the demands were Chairman Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), a member of the committee.

Green said the development demonstrates that "Arab nationalism is a force with which the United States has not yet learned to cope."

Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, ranking Republican on the committee, said it is essential that the United States initiate immediate discussions with Great Britain, Iran, Turkey and others "over the course we must follow."

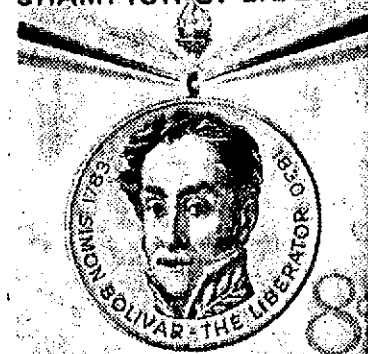

"The loss of Iraq is a severe, alarming loss," he said in a statement. "The Middle East has always been a tinder box. A match has now been lit, and we must be extremely careful that the situation does not explode."

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, assistant Republican leader in the Senate, said "Things seem to go from bad to worse" but added that "At this juncture one should be cautious in his comments until all the facts are at hand."

The news, confirmed by the American Embassy in Baghdad, brought hurried early morning conferences by U. S. officials here to assess its significance and decide what, if anything, the United States could do.

Cables from Ambassador Waldemar Gullman reported that Iraqi army tanks had been deployed around the U. S. Embassy in Baghdad to protect the embassy and its personnel.

A big crowd gathered in front of the U. S. Information Agency office in Baghdad. Gullman ordered it closed to avoid any possible incident.

Initial reports to the State Department by the embassy said there had been no attacks or threats against Americans. As a precaution, Americans were ordered to stay off the streets.

The State Department declined immediate comment but officials were alarmed.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the development calls for a reappraisal and re-evaluation of American foreign policy in the Middle East.

Some fears were expressed privately about the fate of the American-backed Baghdad Pact. The prospect that King Hussein's pro-

Never Given Hearing, Says Ousted Prof.

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Charles Hamilton, ousted as professor at The College of the Ozarks, charged yesterday that he was denied academic due process at his hearing before the Presbyterian school's board.

The board, meeting at Muskogee, Okla., July 6, upheld a previous order dismissing the sociology and political science instructor.

Hamilton said he was not told of the charges against him until it was too late to gather material to disprove them. He added that the charges were not specified and some concerned events which happened after April 24, the date of the board's original dismissal order.

The dispute between Hamilton and school officials was disclosed in mid-April when Dr. Winslow Drummond, Ozarks president, barred Hamilton from teaching his classes. The professor reportedly was dismissed in connection with anonymous letters criticizing school officials.

Hamilton also charged yesterday that the board's story of the Muskogee hearing was inaccurate and released to the press despite an agreement by the board to withhold it. He did not specify the alleged inaccuracies of the account of the hearing.

Picnic Enjoyed By B&PW Ladies

Twenty-six members were present to enjoy a delightful outdoor meal, when the Hope Business Women's Club had their annual picnic dinner July 10, on the beautiful landscaped lawn of their vice-president, Mrs. Virginia Hosmer.

Hospitalities began after Mrs. Susie Butler asked the blessing with a most uplifting prayer. A well planned meal was served by the Finance committee, Mrs. Mabel Ward, finance chairman.

Mrs. Susie Butler, co-chairman, Mrs. Florence Bright, Mrs. Wanda Garrett, Mrs. Audrey Taylor, Mrs. Bell Mudgett, Mrs. Norma DeLaney, Mrs. Jeanne Brown, and Miss Charlene Wiggins.

A short business meeting was held by the club President, Miss Rosa Harris, and was announced that a State board meeting is to be held in Little Rock, August 2, through the 3rd, and all members are urged to attend.

The president brought about the fact that Hope is the hostess club to the Southwest District meeting in September. This will bring members from thirteen other towns to Hope plus all the State officials.

At the close of the session games were enjoyed and a wonderful time had under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Ward.

Pre-Nuptial Tea Fetes Miss Betty Jo Cox

Marking the beginning of pre-nuptial entertainment for Miss Betty Jo Cox bride-elect of James W. Branch, Jr., a beautifully appointed tea was given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Thomas Franklin McElarty and Mrs. Thomas Franklin McElarty Jr., at the Hotel Barlow.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Lex Helms, Jr., Mrs. Royce Smith, and Mrs. H. C. Whitworth. The entrance room held pretty arrangements of white gladioli and white carnations as well as an attractive wrought-iron patio cart filled with Shasta daisies.

Mrs. George Robison invited the guests into the dining room where Mrs. C. C. McNeill introduced the receiving line. In it, they met the hostesses, the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Charles J. Cox, and Mrs. J. W. Branch, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Miss Cox was lovely in a beige and peach colored frock of embroidered silk, and her corsage of fleur d'amour was tinted a charming shade of turquoise.

Inviting the guests to the tea tables were Mrs. Berry Hesterly of Prescott, Mrs. Wilson Stewart of San Angelo, Tex., Mrs. Bess Evans, and Mrs. Roy Jones.

The table, covered with satin and tulle pinned, with sprigs of white stock, was centered with a large arrangement of the same flowers. On either side of it were silver candelabra, holding white tapers.

Punch, mints, and individual cakes were served by Miss Rosa Harris, aunt of the bride-elect, Mrs. Manuel Hamm, Mrs. Dick Watkins, Mrs. Albert Graves, Mrs. Earl O'Neal, and Mrs. E. J. McCabe.

Also helping at the tea table were the young ladies who will serve the honoree as wedding attendants: Miss Sara Mack Cox, Miss Judy Franks, Mrs. Pat Simmons of Magnolia, Miss Cheryl Etter of Washington, Miss Carolyn Phillips, Miss Gladys Hawley, and Miss Donna Freeman.

TEHRAN (AP) Iran today strengthened its guard along its border with Iraq as a precautionary measure to prevent any illegal entry.

Two hundred Iranian troops were stationed outside the Iraqi Embassy in Tehran as a precautionary measure. There was no immediate public reaction to the overthrow of Iraqi King Faisal, an ally of Iran in the Baghdad Pact.

With the Shah still on vacation in Europe and Premier Mostafachek Eghbal in Istanbul for a Baghdad Pact meeting, government officials refused to comment on the Iraqi situation other than to express astonishment.

CANNES, France (AP) — The Shah or Iran left for Istanbul and home today after a world tour which included a brief stop on the French Riviera.

In Istanbul, he was to attend a meeting of the chiefs of state and government heads of the Asian members of the Baghdad Pact. The meeting took on new, urgent importance today with the overthrow of Iraqi King Faisal and his pro-Western government, the only Arab member of the Western-sponsored alliance.

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Winnie, after causing at least two deaths and damage in the Philippines on its Asian rampage, headed toward Formosa today with a threat of fresh violence.

Winnie was reported moving at a 10-mile-an-hour pace.

In Manila, typhoon warnings were raised amid the third day of floodings rains and damaging gusts from Winnie. Blocks of Manila City and the countryside were under knee to waist-deep water and damage was sure to run into millions of pesos.

LONDON (AP) — Britain's leading churchman suggests in a book published today that God may intend to have mankind wipe itself off the face of the earth in a nuclear war.

"For all I know, it is written the providence of God that the human race should destroy itself in this manner," wrote Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury. "There is no evidence that the human race should last forever, and plenty in Scripture to the contrary."

Dr. Fisher, the head of the Church of England, is one of 22

white stock, white gladioli, and white carnations were used as decorations. Miss Evelyn Bryant was at the guest book. Dispensing hospitality were Mrs. John Randall, Miss Ginnane Graves, Miss Judy Watkins, Miss Julia Peck, Miss Diane Helms, Miss Sue Ann Smith, Miss Dorothy Smith and Mrs. Paul McClellan.

Luther Hollamon played the organ during the afternoon tea at which about 350 called during the appointed hours.

HOME IN THE SKY—What looks like the living room in a small home is actually the interior of a twin-engine plane for executives. It was decorated by Mrs. Elfreda Snyder, of New York, who used only materials which are available for home decoration. Among her space-saving innovations are a tape recorder hidden in an ottoman, a bar in a table and a desk which folds into a suitcase stand. Note the bedroom seen in background through the doorway.

DOROTHY DIX

Child Won't Cement Crumbling Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: When Duke and I were married five years ago we agreed not to have children. We both had careers and figured that would be enough for us. We've been drifting steadily apart and I wonder if children would hold us together.

Dear Dix: Handcuffs would accomplish the same purpose. Your marriage is a complete failure because it was built on a flimsy foundation. Now that it's going to pieces, don't make children part of the wreckage.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Friends and relatives have told me that they have seen my fiancé out with other women and that I'm a fool for still loving him. When I question him about it, he says I don't trust him. I can call it all off. Should I continue as if nothing has happened?
T. C.

Dear T. C.: You'd be a little whacky to ignore so many rumors. I would advise discounting one, but when several people have seen your fiancé with other women, I think you are entitled to an explanation.

Dear Dorothy Dix: At a picnic last week I met a very cute boy, but never did learn his last name. How can I get in touch with him? I could ask his friends who he is but it would be embarrassing if he ever found out.
Hope

Dear Hope: You probably never will find out unless you do a little sleuthing. Maybe he's as hesitant as you are.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Lois and I have been chums since grade-school days. Recently I met a boy and we've been going out occasionally ever since. Lois has no boy friend and she is being very disagreeable about mine. She claims I'm trying to break up our friendship. Should I break off with my boy friend?
Olivia

Dear Olivia: The story of the jealous girl friend is an age-old situation. If Lois found herself a beau, she'd desert you without a qualm. Don't give in to her. If she is not satisfied with your friendship as is, cross her off your list. Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her care of this newspaper.

'They Aint No Cowboys,' Says Sonny

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few weeks ago Joe Vanducci, a diligent father, decided he should be spending more of his vacation time with his 10-year-old son, Sonny.

This, he quickly discovered, involved mainly sitting in front of the television set laughing (and sneering) at the dusty progression of cowboy heroes channeled to Los Angeles each week on 23 Westerns.

Although a bit saddle-sore after successive days of Western marathons, Vanducci later explained that his biggest surprise was his son's cynical attitude toward the cowboys.

"To me," he explained, "cowboys had been a kind of lifelong inspiration. I admired and believed in them. I wished I could go out and ride the range with them right then."

When father Vanducci confided this secret ambition to his son, the boy gave him a long look of pity.

"Who're you kidding," he said. "There ain't any cowboys."

Vanducci jumped at what he thought was a golden opportunity to educate his city son in the realities of the West. He resolved then and there to take the boy to a real, old-time cattle ranch and show him how wrong he was.

After considerable search and effort, he arranged for a visit to a 80,000-acre cattle ranch 130 miles southeast of this home range of Marshal Dillon, Wyatt Earp, Paladin and all the rest of Bonos, shootin', ridin', heroes. This is what he found:

The ranch yard looked more like a lot used for trucks and farm implements than a corral.

A modern cowboy who used a rope on a steer would be fired, as roping makes steers nervous and puts them off their feed for four or five days, which in turn makes them lose weight and the ranch owner lose money.

The dozen cowboys working on the ranch ranged in age between 20 and 70, and all but three of them were bespectacled, paunchy, and vitally interested in such things as Social Security and income taxes.

None of the cowboys carried a gun — against the law.

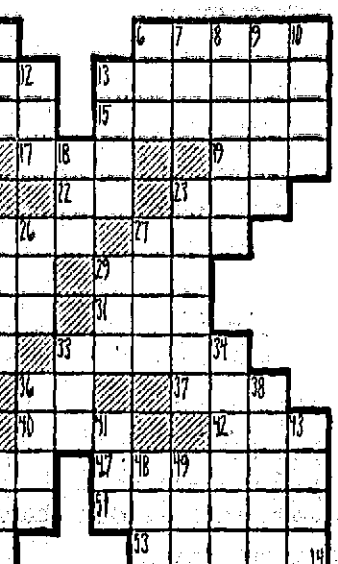

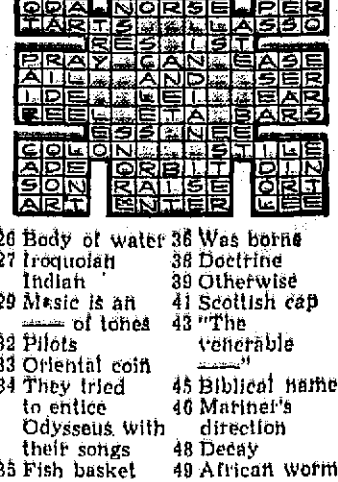

One intrepid horseman had a saddle with a foam rubber seat and four carried transistor radios in saddle pouches on the rare occasions they had to be alone with the cattle.

These cowboys of the modern West hung around the ranch yard and bought their supplies — frozen meat and vegetables — from a refrigerated truck which came by three times a week.
